

SLC facilitated research writing groups (RWGs)

The SLC currently facilitates a small number of RWGs in broad discipline groupings. Details of these can be found on the SLC website. You might like to experience one of these sessions before you commit to a self-managed writing group.

For instance, you might be thinking of joining a self-managed group but you're not sure if this is right for you. If so, you're welcome to attend a session of one of the SLC-facilitated RWGs to see if a writing group is appropriate for you.

If you're thinking of facilitating a writing group, you can also attend a session of an SLC-facilitated RWG and observe how the facilitator works. You could even try out becoming a facilitator for a session (subject to the group members' approval). Also, don't forget that the SLC can provide facilitator training.

If you're interested in exploring any of these, please contact the SLC.